I Desire to Bring You In

For I have brought forth out of my own will Sons and Daughters to serve me. I have birthed you by my spirit and I have given you the creation of the new nature whereby to serve me, saith the Spirit of Grace. For I'll bring forth in these changing times and in these last hours before my coming the pearls of great price; those who have been through and walked through the fire and they will be unto me pearls of great price. Wherever they're at, they will bring forth my presence. You're called to this each and every one of you from the least to the greatest. I have called you apart. I have not just called you apart, but I have given you my anointing to live righteous and holy in this life. So come apart and know me and find that there is a joy unspeakable that words cannot attain to. I have brought you into this house today. It was not your own determination, nor your own will, but I brought you here by my spirit. Glean and hear these words today and not only these words but words which will be spoken hereafter. For I desire to bring you in. Not that you would be put out. I do not shame you for your weaknesses and failures to this point, but I offer to you again and again the hand which has the capacity by my spirit to raise you up into heavenly places in Christ Jesus. For I have given my Son as I said, and you are Sons and Daughters unto me. So rejoice in knowing that I love you with a love that is unspeakable and if you will let me I will love on you and lavish to you that love today. I am pleased that you're in this place and I am pleased that you're hearing these words. So rejoice in me and put everything underfoot. Choose to put everything underfoot that I may exalt you for I promise to you as I speak these words that if you choose this day life that you will go out of here with another place that will exalt you in my presence and in my spirit and your life will increase in blessings and in fruitfulness and in all good things, saith the Spirit of Grace. Hallelujah.
