Escape into Victory

The giant and the bear and the lion you have slain before. Come away with me. Come away with me my love. Let me steal your heart into the darkness. Let our communion be sweet. For I prepare you for battle, for there are more giants in the land and there are more lions and there are more bears. There are more of those things that you will conquer before your days are through. You'll pass through this fire and you will not be burnt. You will not be burnt and the next one and the next one and each one you'll find a way of escape into victory, saith the Spirit of Grace. But while you're in the fiery furnace steal away with me into the darkness. For in that darkness there is great light, saith the Spirit of Grace. I will visit you. I will visit you in those places where the enemy thinks that he's put you in a chamber or a prison. I'll serve you communion in that cell and we together will walk out. There are no bars that can confine you. There is no prison that can keep you. For as soon as you're locked in one you'll escape and as soon as another comes I'll serve you communion and you'll walk through the bars. You'll walk through the gates and find a way of escape. I promised that with every trial and temptation that I would provide a way of escape. My word is your way. My spirit is your way. Find that place in me. There is great promise in me, saith the spirit of Grace.
