

Prophecies – The Family Prayer Center – 2006

Prophecy060101a – Jan 1, 2006

I Keep My Promises

Again, I would say, rejoice. Again, I say: Lift up your head and rejoice, for your redemption draws nigh.

Many of you here today are walking through such heartaches and such pain, but do you think for one moment that I have left you or forsaken you? If you could see into the Spirit realm this morning, if you could see what I have planned for you—you are victorious in everything that you do. And in everything that you do, if you will look at Me and do not be intimidated, do not be scared off, do not let the enemy—remember this: No flesh is your enemy, no flesh, but you have been convinced many times that you are fighting flesh and blood.

You are not fighting flesh and blood, but you are fighting an enemy who wants to destroy and kill you. But I would say to you this morning that I have a plan for you, and it is a great plan. There is no time with Me—there is time with you, but with Me there is no time. We are eternal in Heaven, and We have no time. And I have planned for you things this year that you cannot even imagine. Why do you think that you are being fought so hard?

Why do you think the enemy wants to stop the work of God? Why? Because he knows that you are a great and mighty army, that you are warriors, that you have been sent by Me. You came from your mother's womb for this very hour. For this very day were you born that you would see the great and mighty move of God, and the enemy would try and make you believe that you are not a part of this, that you are not going to see this happen, that it is all talk. But I would tell you this, that everything that you have gone through, you have gone through because the enemy wants to discourage you. He wants to make you look down and think that you are not qualified, even that you are not able to be a part of this because you don't deserve it. Don't be intimidated any longer.

Don't be cowardly. Stand up and rejoice! If you could see what I have planned for you today, you would dance in the streets. You would absolutely begin to shout and rejoice, for I am here this morning. I have never left you nor forsaken you, and though it may seem that you have been left, I have never [left you]. And I would say to you today: Rejoice in Me. Rejoice and be glad that I am here.

I am here this morning in your body and in your spirit, and My Spirit reigns in your spirit. And when you reach out your hand to do anything, My hand reaches out through yours. And I am telling you that what you have been calling and calling forth is happening, and you will not have to fear. Stop fearing; I have told you to fear not.

The things that have happened, you say, "Oh, I am ruined." But you are not ruined. You are blessed this morning. And the things that you cry out for and the pain and the suffering that so many of you have suffered through has not been done in vain, for I am a God who promises, and I keep My promises.

