

Prophecies – The Family Prayer Center – 2006

Prophecy060730a – Jul 30, 2006 Let Me Fill You With My Words

For whom I have set free is free indeed. Come unto Me all ye that labor in the vineyard, those who find yourselves heavy laden, come and find rest. Let Me begin to rewrite for you the script of your life.

Let Me begin to help you understand the things that you have seen through the eyes of man and now through the heart of God—those things being seen of a much lighter nature. And you will be able to say when I am finished, “These things are not as I have been taught, Lord, or are they the way I have seen. But these things, Lord, I have longed for, and I have desired.”

Let Me fill you with My words, for as it written, My words are spirit, and My words are life. For I desire to rewrite for you and take you from that place, where you have seen through man’s eyes who I am, into a place where you are seeing through My eyes who I am. And in that hour, you will rejoice because you will find it gets lighter and sweeter as the days go by, says the Spirit of Grace.