

Prophecies – The Family Prayer Center – 2007

Prophecy070530h – May 30, 2007 You Have Not Because You Ask Not

For all, there is a resting place in Me. I have great joy to give you. Your Father takes no pleasure to see any of you struggle, and if you will call on Me in your weakest hour when you think that I cannot hear, when by your own definition there is no Presence, and it is as dry as the driest moment of your life, if you will speak My Name, I promise you on the basis on My Word, I will come and change the things around you. For you have not because you ask not, but if you will ask, you will see, I will prove Myself to you.

For the days are so much closer than what you realize to the raising of the dead. Do you not know that the closer it gets to that place of authority where I can give you these things, that enemy must try every last trick in his scheduled book of warfare? For the days of raising the dead are upon you. Know this: It will turn in a moment's time.

It will turn in a moment's time. And those of you who have and are now calling on Me to be used, know that this will go to all those who can believe Me for it. In a moment's time, many of you will report back with unheard of kinds of miracles. These are so much closer than you realize.

It is his [the enemy's] tactic to try and convince you that these things are set off way in the distance, and thus he does by a continual assault on your peace. But I am coming to convince you, says the Spirit of Grace, that the immediacy, the presentness of these things are upon you. They are upon you.

So rejoice in Me and believe. Believe that you are all going to be used in these mighty works, says the Spirit of Grace. The blind see; the lame walk; the deaf hear; the dumb speak; the dead are raised, and thousands and thousands are born again.

The days of these manifestations are not over. For many will be the times that you will meet in this house and in other places that you will come together for social times. You will come together for barbecues, and you will come together for social times in this place that is coming. You will begin to talk about Me as you enjoy each other's company, and as you begin to talk about Me in this place that is coming called "revival," know that it will come, time and time again, that the house wherein you assemble yourselves together will be shaken by My Presence, says the Lord.

The glory of My Presence will come in almost unexpected. You will be about to take another bite on a rib, and I am going to come, says the Spirit of Grace. You will be about to speak another word, and I will come and shake the house wherein you are sitting. See these things because these are the days of your future.

You will be going about doing your mundane kinds of things and enjoying your company inside of Me, and I will shake the house wherein you are sitting, says the Spirit of Grace. And I will refuel you time and time again for My outpouring. And the lost will see My glory in you, and My strength will be upon you continually.

You will go to this place and to that place and because you will carry inside of you the pregnancy of revival continually, you will just begin to speak a word, and I will come on you, and you will begin to change the whole atmosphere, says the Spirit of Grace. I will shake the house because you are in the house.

I saw Him at weddings. I saw Him at parties, and we were a messed up a bunch—we could hardly have a good time with each other because when we started talking, He blew in and shook the place, and we got reenergized and rejuvenated, refueled.