

Prophecies – The Family Prayer Center – 2007

Prophecy070718a – Jul 18, 2007 It Is Impossible to Transform Yourself

Here what the word of the Lord would say, for many of you are pressing into the mark, to that place that you know brings Me pleasure. For I see and have found a great awareness of your heart at hand, but know that as earnest as your heart is to give Me your best, know that even in your best, you must rely, lean on, and put your weight of transformation into My best on Me, says the Spirit of Grace.

For in all of your very best, in which I am elated to see and to receive, in your very best, it is impossible for you to transform yourself over into that place where I can come and do more for you. Of yourself you can do nothing, but through Me you can do all things, says the Spirit of Grace. So rest upon Me. Present your heart at your very best, but know still that it is not of your strength but of Mine that I come and add to you all of the necessary ingredients to take you to the place where I can come and do more for you, says the Spirit of Grace.

What He wants you to know is that He is preparing you. He wants to take you and me to places we've never been. Sometimes it just hurts. It feels like something is just ripping you apart because you want it so bad, but nevertheless, He wants you to know that even as bad as it hurts, you couldn't do it with all the earnest effort. He wants to come and stand beside you and transform you moment by moment.

Something very wonderful is being offered to us. We receive it Jesus—Your intercession for a great outpouring.

I say these things—I preface the things that I will say by saying this, says the Spirit of the Lord, those of you who walk in My Presence and know Me, know there is nothing that is scripted, as in moments in time or events, that you would set aside for Me to come and change things through you. Know this: All those who offer themselves up as intercessors and will worship Me and lend yourself, spirit, soul, and body to Me, know that I will come at what seems like the most inopportune times, unscheduled times. You will find that My timetable in the Spirit is not exactly as you imagine. For I take very little notice of what human events or circumstances or daily activity is running around you.

For those of you who serve Me in spirit, know that I can be working a work in your spirit while your soul is occupied in other areas, but know, those of you who learn the art of intercession will find that I will come and borrow your authority at times when you feel as if you are unprepared. Know at that moment in time, My grace is sufficient, and I'll hedge you in, so even the part where natural embarrassment and those things of not being able to explain what you are in will be easy for you because I will hide you away for the moment. And moments will come, and if you will allow Me to take these moments in you, I will take from you the authority to change things that you do not even know presently, and then the more that you steward this, the more I will come and show you what we together, you and

I, changed before it ever took place, says the Spirit of Grace.