

Prophecies – The Family Prayer Center – 2007

Prophecy070826a - Aug 26, 2007 The Darkest Hour Is Always Before the Dawn

If you would know this and understand these things, then your life will be all the more often consistent with My desire for you to live a triumphant life. When you know this and these things, you are not ignorant of his [the adversary's] devices. But if you will understand that when My authority in you grows, and it must be stopped by the one who contends for your faith—know this, that the darkest hour is always before the dawn. And the pressing—he must press and cause and bring the attack against your emotions and against your reasonings and even your choices to [influence you to] debate whether they were right or wrong, knowing that, way back, you settled all things in peace that you would not be stopped, and you would contend for the gold.

Know this, that the darkest [hour] only proves when things increase, and the darkness is the thing that increases. Know this, that things are not getting worse, they are getting better, says the Spirit of Grace. For he, in his limited knowledge, sees the hour that you will walk free from the very thing that he's held for so long, garrisoned up by emotions. But know this: The closer you get to the spring day and the morning star rising with healing in His wings, know this: one will press in and press in. Know: If it is darker that it is much lighter—it is lighter on the inside where all permanent change takes place, says the Spirit of Grace.

So hang on, hang on and enjoy the ride for just a little bit more, and you will see things that you have not even hoped for or dreamed of. I will exceed those things because I took the authority that you gave Me and excelled in that and will bring you to a very, very pleasurable and happy and joyful season of your life, says the Spirit of Grace.