Prophecy071110LA – Nov 10, 2007 This Is the Place of My Habitation

As soon as I walked in this building this morning, the Lord said: This is the place of My habitation. I am inhabiting currently the praises and the worship of My people, but I am also brooding, says the Spirit of the Lord. I am brooding for that birth that I have been brooding because you have allowed Me to, says the Spirit of Grace. And I will bring forth all that I have determined to birth in this place because you have given Me this, says the Spirit of Grace.

There is really an atmospheric Presence that has been created in this place, and it's going to break out here in the very near future. And when it does, not one person in here is your life going to be the same. Everything that you know life to be is going to change because you are going to live more in the Heavenly realm than in the earthly.

Everything about the way your family is run will change. You will want to be here more than anything else. You will be at a place where you can't wait for the 5 o'clock hour to ring so you can run right back here so you can be in the Presence of the Lord.

The invigorating Life that will be here will sustain your body at unprecedented levels. You will require less sleep. You will be able to run faster, and more than that, you will just want to be in the Presence of the Father. I can tell you right now, you are not far; you are not far from the journey that you have been down.

And Bronc, I just feel the Lord commends you as His son, but the Lord says you are a father, and you have held the course, and I will bring forth all that has been cultivated in this place. This place has been slated for some of the very best that God has to serve this generation. This will be a breeding ground of great, great miracles—great miracles! Great, great miracles, they will come from everywhere, and you will also take it.
