Prophecy090107a – Jan 7, 2009 The Throne Room of the Lamb

I heard the Lord begin to speak and say these words prophetically: I have a room for all of you to visit. I have a room of all of you to visit as often and as frequently as each person so desires. For some, this room is a familiar room, thoroughly furnished by a continual place of visitation, and for others, this room is to be furnished by your visitation, but to all: This place is the throne room of the Lamb. You will find that this place is free to all, and to all who hear My voice, I say: Come.

Come to this place. Visit this place in My Presence often. Let Me describe to you the furnishings that surround this atmosphere. When you enter into this place, it is thoroughly furnished with peace. It is thoroughly embellished with a Presence of refreshing, and there is no accusation in this room, says the Spirit of Grace, only a refreshing from your Father. The Lamb sits postured and poised, and yet the starch of religion has no place in this place. There is no atmosphere of do's and don'ts and yet a refreshing of continual approval from Me, says the Spirit of Grace.

The Lamb wants you to know that, face to face, He is speaking that to you. This is the encounter that you will have with Him in that place. For know this: As I said, says the Lamb, the starch of religion is removed from this place, and refreshings are the continual order of the day. Whether you stay five minutes or five hours, the same results will take place—My continual refreshing.

Know this, that human effort is dissolved in this place, and it is replaced by My strength in you, says the Spirit of Grace. So visit this place; come in—know that it is a place to lounge and be refreshed. Visit this place often and you will be glad that you did, says the Spirit of Grace.
