Swept Away

For every man and woman that has this hope in them purifieth themselves even as they are pure. Know this; all those who are able to hear My voice are drawn into Me in this hour and in these days. Begin to lay aside every weight and sin that would easily beset you and run all the more with patience the race that is set before you. For soon the harvest will enter in to a great outpouring and come to a place that you will be swept away with many waters to the point that you will have almost an endeavor to keep your head above the great flux of glory that will come in with great sweeping moves of My presence and know this that to all the little ones, those that will be born in this outpouring they will need your strength, they will need that which you have found of Me to be faithful and true saith the Spirit of Grace. Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
