

Prophecies – The Family Prayer Center – 2010

Prophecy100915b – Sep 15, 2010 Worship Removes the Shroud

The shroud, this is what I heard: The shrouding it comes, and you cannot see. You cannot see who you are in Me except through Me, says the Spirit of Grace. For in attacks like this, when the enemy comes and wars and wars and wars, the weaknesses about you are the things that he highlights and brings, up all the time, against your senses to convince you that that's who you are.

None of you have the capacity within yourself, that is, in the realm of the soul, to see yourself in the light of what I see you in and what he sees you in, says the Spirit of Grace. But know this: The remedy to being enlightened, the remedy to dropping all shrouds—did I not say, “put on the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness?”

Know this, that the more in these last days that you turn yourself over to worship and godly mannerisms of giving adoration and praise unto Me, know this, that you will see yourself not in pride, but you will see yourself as who you are in Me, able to go forth. And you will see yourself in the joy of the righteousness of God in Christ Jesus and experience that great joy you once had at the beginning of many of your walks, but [then] fell short and found that things began to clog the well of joy and peace.

Oh, but know this: That well is about to be unclogged. For all those who will worship Me and give themselves over to extended worship, I will wake you up in the morning, and I will put you to bed at night, and I will sing you a lullaby in the middle of the night and teach you who you are so that you rise up as spiritual giants, and not only know it by faith, but you will feel it in your emotions, and you will feel it in your senses. And I will begin to ride with you on the high places of the earth so that what you are speaking by faith, you will also feel in the realm of the senses, says the Spirit of Grace.