

Prophecies - The Family Prayer Center - 2012

Prophecy120711 July 11st 2012

Be Contagious

Hallelujah Jesus, I've asked you to move in a realm that is not familiar to the flesh. I've asked you to take the authority that I've given you in my name and change things saith the Spirit of Grace. For what you cannot see with the natural eye you must believe in faith that things are happening when you speak. I asked you to bless your brethren and to petition me more and more for their awakening, so that all may flow together and a grace come to the house and that the intercessors raise up, let the mighty men and the mighty women of God shake themselves and stir themselves, refused to come under but to go forth saith the Spirit of Grace. Refuse to slumber and to sleep while my church is coming forth. But I say arise, arise and take upon yourself the sweet smell of a bride who has perfumed herself and is ready and adorned, ready to be entreated by her lover saith the Spirit of Grace, but I say let the fierceness of God, the fierceness against wickedness and perversion upon the land let it come forth as a mighty man of war. Let the women, let the children, let the men, speak with boldness. Renounce the spirits of timidity and renounce the spirits of oppression and depression in the name of Jesus. Speak my word be contagious, yes I said unto you be contagious one to another. Let that which is in you begin to inspire those around you, my strength. And pull my strength together so that I may have one body speaking the same thing. Turn, when you feel debate around you turn from it. Humble yourself that you come into agreement upon Jesus and all that he has done for this land saith the Spirit of Grace. Let my virtue flow in you and through you so the nations will be healed, and I say unto you it will not be many days until you will see this house full saith the Spirit of Grace. You will come together and the elders will speak of the problem and they will, they will consult with my Spirit of the problem of what to do with the newborn babes. For I say unto you this is coming. This is coming though there has been a scattering and though there has been many distractions against the body and even against the elders and many devils from hell have been sent to occupy and to bring forth these things. I say unto you that my authority in this house has not been lost, it has not been displayed and I say into you that not many days hence you will find a place of rejoicing me such as you have never known saith the Spirit of Grace. I say be bold as a lion and harmless as a dove, let the weak say I am strong, let the fearful say that I can run through troop and I can leap over a wall through my God. Let my word be in your mouth. I say unto the youngest and to those who believe of themselves that they know the least, scatter my word like seed on the earth, plant it and harvest it. Believe that you are empowered, for you have been more than empowered by my Spirit and the words that you have heard in this house have been powerful words, words that have prepared you. Do not wait for training, do not wait for preparation, gather in the harvest now, cast out devils that would confront you, stand on property lines and call men and women born again. Walk the parameter of places that I tell you to go and plead my blood and call my name and speak my word and my angels will come and abide there saith the Spirit of Grace. My glory will hover over that place until conviction comes and the house bows their knee.

