Stay in the Mothership

Prophecy240121 – January 21, 2024

Hear the word of the Lord. Hear the word of the Lord. There's a storm among you, and those even that are watching, but now is not the time to go anywhere or contemplate any other major changes in your life. Except you remain in the mothership, you shall not be saved.

He doesn't mean that if anybody went any place other than here, you'd lose your salvation, you'd lose His love and anointing. But right now, He's explaining that there's a war. It's not been fought by us except until now. There's more than one person, there's more than two persons; there are people in here, diagnose-wise they are literally, and I'm not exaggerating, they're literally fighting for their lives. It's that kind of war. It's not a, and I'm not making fun of this, it's not a "Go home and take some Advil" from the doctor. "Go home, take Advil, rest. Drink plenty of fluids and drink juice." It's not those kinds of wars. It's not those.

This is a time where He's saying, "Except you remain in the boat, you shall not be saved." In other words, the enemy's got some course. And again, I'll remind everyone sitting here because there are multiple, and I say multiple, I mean multiple people. I've reached out and said, "Pray," because we're wanting to know the mind of Christ concerning direction. If He wasn't doing this corporately and [there weren't] multiple people involved in a fight, it would've been just like I explained at the beginning, individually.
